Local War Finance Committee Hold Meeting

Mass Meeting And Entertainment Program to Open Drive; To Be Held in Bellevue Arena.

The first organization meeting for the new Third Victory Loan was held in the council chamber on Wednesday evening. The meeting was presided over by H. C. McBurney, unit organizer, and was attended by a number of committee members and canvassers as well as Ken Ringland, divisional organizer.

Mr. Ringland outlined various aspects of the Third Loan among them being the fact that this loan was for $750,000,000 as against $600,000,000 for the last loan. As a result it was anticipated that Coleman's quota might be a little higher.

It was decided to adopt the same system of canvassing as in the past. Canvassers will be appointed at a later meeting. The loan starts on Oct. 19.

Mrs. Gilbert Hoyle has been appointed secretary and has started her duties.

To send the Loan away to a flying start a mass meeting and entertainment program will be staged in the Bellevue arena on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 18. Two young ladies from California sent by the U.S.A. government, along with a R.C.A.F. band and other artists will be in attendance. The meeting will be addressed by some outstanding speaker who is engaged in the War Loan drive.

Salvation Army Campaign Over $400 Mark

Expect to Reach $500 Quota by This Week End; Campaign Dragging at Eastern End of Pass.

Coleman is almost certain to reach the $500 quota set it by the Salvation Army's Red shield campaign committee. To date $410 has been collected with a fair-sized territory still to be canvassed.

Three local organizations have sent in contributions, they being the Ladies' Italian Society, Summit Lodge, A. F. & A. M., and the Elks. A total of approximately $10 was received from the East Coleman division and a little better than $60 from West Coleman and Caribouville. The central district and Graftonville are being canvassed at the present time.

Bellevue, Hillcrest and Cowley are not contributing very well, according to Lieut. Marks. No organizations have been set up in these towns and the work of soliciting has been left entirely to Lieut. Marks, who is making a personal canvass of each home.

Gasoline sales for July last amounted to 4,670,026 gallons, compared with 5,844,181 in the same month of 1941.

Two Macleod Airmen Injured When Hit By Car

Highway Accident Puts Two in Hospital; Condition of Injured Favorable.

Two airmen from Macleod air training school, R. C. A. F., are progressing favorably in Coleman and Blairmore hospitals, after being hit by an auto on the eastern outskirts of Blairmore on Saturday night, while walking along the highway.

The accident occurred between 8 and 8:30 o'clock, when the car driven by Martin Evans, of Todd Creek, who had his brother, Jim Evans, in the front seat with him, and a passenger, Martin Schlosser, of Blairmore, in the rear seat, was travelling to Blairmore from the Evans farm at Todd Creek.

On reaching the outskirts of Blairmore, a black figure loomed up in front of the car and Jim Evans applied the brakes, but felt that his car had crashed into something. Getting out of the car after it was brought to a stop, he noticed two R.C.A.F. men lying on the road. He and his brother and Martin Schlosser rendered first aid to the unconscious men and gave directions to some of the crowd that gathered to get medical assistance.

Upon arrival of the doctor the injured men were removed to Blairmore hospital.

It was discovered that one airman was suffering from fractures of both legs and superficial wounds and that his companion had severe head injuries. One of the injured men was later removed to the Coleman hospital.

Blairmore town police are trying to learn the identity of the oncoming car, the lights of which blinded the driver of the Evans car.

The place where the accident occurred usually is frequented by people on the road during many hours of the night, walking between Frank and Blairmore, and it is difficult for a driver to see pedestrians on the road in the darkness when a car is approaching from the opposite direction. The townpeople of Blairmore and Frank have been requesting for some time that a sidewalk be built between Blairmore and Frank, so that pedestrians would not find it necessary to walk on the main highway. —Lethbridge Herald.

Frank Turner Resigns From School Staff

Mr. G. Howarth, of Stirling, Ap. pointed as General Shopwork Teacher.

The resignation of Mr. Frank Turner as general shopwork teacher at the local and Blairmore schools has been accepted by the two boards. His successor is Mr. G. R. Howarth, of Stirling.

Mr. Turner has not been enjoying the best of health for some time and it was for this reason he severed his connection with the two schools. He will help relieve at the Cranbrook school for a little while. Mr. Howarth's qualifications are: senior certificate in general shop, first-class permanent teacher's certificate, second year of B.Sc. degree course in arts. He also has seven years of experience and has taught in Macleod and in the Warner, Wrentham, New Dayton and Stirling circuit.

Mr. and Mrs. Howarth and son David arrived in town on Monday and will take up residence here.

Mail Christmas Parcels Now To Armed Forces Overseas

November 10 Latest Date That Parcels May Be Mailed If They Are to Arrive For Christmas Delivery

Santa Claus must get off to an early start if our Armed Forces overseas are to get their Christmas boxes on time. Though that holiday seems far in the distance, today is not too soon to start Christmas overseas mailings. The postmaster general, Honourable William P. Mulock, advises that gifts should be sent now and during October—the earlier the better—to ensure timely delivery. November 10 is the very latest date that parcels may be mailed if they are expected to arrive in time for Christmas. However, patrons are urged not to defer mailing until the very last possible date but to mail early and prevent congestion, and give the Postal authorities opportunity to arrange for cargo space aboard ocean vessels. A great influx of mail reaching the Base Post Office around, or after the "deadline" set would result in delivery being delayed, for not only would it accentuate the problem of handling, but of finding sufficient storage space aboard ship because only a limited space is allotted the Post Office in view of the urgent requirements for forwarding munitions and other war supplies.

To further facilitate the problem of providing adequate shipping space for the Christmas mails to the Forces, it is suggested, that although the maximum weight of a parcel at reduced rate is set at eleven pounds senders should voluntarily cut down as far as possible on the weight and size of their Christmas packages. If they do so they will help make more accommodation available for other parcels on the same ship, and give the post office the chance to make deliveries in time for all. There is the most vital need of full co-operation by the public, for this year the Post Office expects an all-time record in the overseas volume of military mails will be established and is already preparing in every way possible to handle and expedite the influx. Greater care than ever before is necessary on the part of mailers, in the preparation of their overseas parcels, in order to avoid delay.

Address all mails in ink, fully, clearly and without misleading abbreviations. Be sure to place return address on cover—also include a slip in the parcel bearing sender's address as well as address of parcel. Prepay all mail correctly.

Parcels should be packed compactly enough to resist the pressure of other mails in the sack and the handling in transit. Use strong corrugated containers, not light cardboard boxes, wrap in several layers of thick wrapping paper, and tie securely with strong cord. Do not use Christmas tissue paper for wrapper, or colored ribbons to tie. Parcels may be sewn in strong cotton or similar fabric.

Jams, syrups and any other substance likely to leak and spread, if sent at all, must be enclosed in sealed containers, (not glass bottles), surrounded with absorbent material in corrugated cardboard, and securely wrapped and tied. A completed Customs Declaration form should accompany every parcel. Apples, grapes, etc., or any article likely to spoil or become damaged, or to injure Postal personnel, or the mails are not acceptable. The mailing of Matches, Safety-Matches and Lighter Fluid or any other inflammable substance is strictly prohibited by law.

Citizens, by refraining from writing to our Forces overseas that gifts are being sent, until actually mailed, can save much disappointment. Do not disappoint our men by mailing their gifts too late for Christmas delivery.

CIGARETTE FUND NOTES

Just a few words to let you know I've been getting your gift parcels of cigarettes quite regularly. Thanks a lot. I also wish to say thanks to the ladies branch for the parcels which they have sent me. I also thank the people of Coleman who help to make these parcels possible. Contacts Brother After Three Years Silence

Found Out Brother's Whereabouts From Visiting Polish Airmen; Sends Wire and Receives Reply.

The grim tragedy of war is felt through the civilized world. To those in Canada having relatives in European countries when the Nazis overran the continent it meant much mental anguish as they wonder what has happened to their relatives in the homeland.

A local case has been brought to light in the receipt of a telegram by Mike Opulski from his brother Teddy, now in England, whom he wired on Sept. 25.

Mike has repeatedly tried to contact his brother, who was residing in Poland when the war broke out in 1939. It was only his good fortune in meeting a recent Polish airman to Coleman, Sgt. Instructor Leon Switon, of Moose Jaw, and a member of the Polish air force, that he learned of his brother's whereabouts.

Following the introduction, Sgt. Switon asked Mike if he was related to Teddy Opulski, and when answered in the affirmative, replied that Teddy was his squadron leader in the U.A.F. in flights over Germany. He also revealed that Mike's brother had been a member of the Polish Army and had risen to the rank of lieutenant. He then transferred to the Polish air force and was shot down when the Nazi attack came. He escaped to France and later to England. Since becoming squadron leader in the R.A.F. he had shot down 17 Nazi planes. He is now 37 years of age and is no longer allowed to fly over the continent.

Mike immediately sent a wire on Sept. 25 and received a reply from his brother in England on Oct. 5. An airmail letter and parcel are now on their way from Coleman. Mike also learns that his brother has received decorations from Poland, France and Britain for his valor.

Lions Elect Committees For 1942-43 Season

Will Hold Annual Charter Night Ball at Turtle Mountain Playgrounds October 16.

Lions held a very interesting supper-meeting at the Grand Union hotel on Monday evening, President Bob. Pattinson presiding.

A number of committees were chosen and resulted as follows: By-laws, P. Dickieson; convention, A. Haysom; finance, F. Guerard; Lions education, J. E. Kirk; membership, S. Murdoch; program, L. S. Richards; publicity, A. Balloch; attendance, H. Houghton; sight conservation and the blind, Dr. H. Claxton; civic improvement, F. Abousaffy; boys and girls, R. Spillers.

Henceforth the club will meet at 6:15 instead of 7:15 as in the past.

A number of interesting debates were held on several pertinent topics of the day. These debates are most interesting and educational and are taken part in by practically all the members.

Towards the end of the meeting President Pattinson presented Percy Dickieson with a past president's pin. In making the presentation, the president paid tribute to Lion Dickieson's work in the club's behalf last year.

The second annual charter night ball will be held at Turtle Mountain Playgrounds on Friday, Oct. 16. Lions A. Haysom and W. L. Taylor were appointed to supervise transportation. Lion S. C. Short will be master of ceremonies.

Legion Desires Addresses Immediately

Ladies Auxiliary, B.E.S.L. Will Be Preparing Soldiers' Parcels Shortly.

Elsewhere in this issue is a message to all Canadians sending parcels overseas from Postmaster Mulock. In his message he advises that parcels be sent during October and so eliminate last minute mailings and give postal authorities a chance to use to the utmost all shipping accommodation that is being allotted to the postal service.

The Ladies Auxiliary B.E.S.L. held a committee meeting on Monday evening to decide when parcels should be prepared and the contents of each. As a result of the postmaster's appeal for early overseas mailing it is expected that they will start preparing parcels in the near future.

One thing that will hinder mailing is the soldiers' addresses. The last appeal for addresses resulted in two parties sending in the correct addresses of soldiers. There are many soldiers whose addresses are unknown. In order to facilitate mailing and to make sure that all local soldiers receive their Christmas parcels the auxiliary and the Legion again appeal to local citizens to send in the names and addresses to all soldiers to Alex. Easton, secretary of the Legion.

May Appeal Over Reduced Category

Any car owners who are using their cars in business and receive notification to surrender their 'A' coupon books of gasoline rationing and accept 'AA' books may appeal to the regional office of the oil controller, according to information received by the Alberta Motor Association.

It is not the present intention of the oil controller to require 'A' book holders who are using their cars in business to surrender their oil books for the new category. Any who receive such notice may file an appeal. The 'AA' category is for non-essential cars.

W. J. Dick, regional oil controller at Edmonton, has stated that notices are being mailed to 25,000 Alberta car owners who have been placed in category 'AA', asking them to turn in their old books so that new ones may be issued the same day the old ones are received.

If a ration book contains less than 16 coupons necessary for the six months period from Oct. 1 to March 31, then the new books will contain only the number of coupons that were in the old books.

The oil controller has asked for the co-operation of motorists so that they may be supplied with their new coupon books as speedily as possible.

WILL STUDY MEANS FOR THE MOST EFFECTIVE METHODS OF PRODUCING REQUIRED SALVAGE

Ottawa.—A House of Commons sub-committee decided that it should obtain the views of the man on the street in regard to collection of salvage vital to the war effort.

The group, a unit of the house committee on war expenditure, has studied the work of 12 government salvage agencies, and J. H. Sissons (Lib., Peace River) said it was felt the views of men and women in typical Canadian communities would be valuable in indicating the most effective methods of producing required salvage materials.

The sub-committee has the task of inquiring into salvage operations in relation to the war effort, to suggest improvements where they may be possible, to determine if any greater degree of co-ordination is possible between various agencies and to consider where possible the question of post-war salvage.

Witnesses before the committee were Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, associate minister of national war services, and Charles LaFerte, director of the war services salvage division. Mr. Justice Davis said he believed post-war salvage will be as great a problem as that existing at present. Some organization would have to be created to handle the transformation of military supplies to civilian uses, and this might be done by perpetuation of the present Wartime Salvage Ltd., a government company.

There is now a glut of scrap paper and 1,900 voluntary committees engaged in salvage collections have been advised this material is no longer required unless the collecting committees can find an outlet for it in their own communities, he said.

The tin can—christened "the headache" of salvage collectors—gave promise of making a contribution to meeting Canada's steel shortage as members of sub-committee urged study of methods of making effective use of it.

While many tons of cans have been collected, the sub-committee heard that difficulties of shipping, pressing them into blocks and separation of the tin from other metals had resulted in only a small percentage of those collected actually being used.

Charles LaFerte, director of the national war services division, said:

"We have not as yet found facilities to look after the tin cans which have been collected. There is no purpose in asking the public for something unless we are prepared to take it away and make use of it.

"If we need this metal—and we do—we will have to create the facilities for handling it."

Mr. LaFerte said metal control authorities had consulted with the inventor of a process for removing and saving the tin on cans, leaving the remainder of the can to go to the steel mills. By the incinerator method of removing the tin, this metal is lost

FOR WAR INDUSTRY

Part-Time Training Program For Workers For War Industry

Ottawa.—Labor Minister Mitchell announced a part-time training program to fit workers in low priority occupation for war industry.

Through evening classes organized by the training branch of the labor department, training will be available for workers who will ultimately be expected to take work in the planning stage, is expected to come into effect shortly.

"A great part of this training will be in bench fitting, general machine shop practice and machine tool operation," the minister's announcement said.

"Those taking the part-time classes will be trained on condition that when competent they will accept employment in a war industry as the need for their absorption into such war plants is indicated through national selective service."

VICTORY PRODUCE

Plan For Farmers To Share In The Victory Loan

Ottawa.—The national war finance committee, preparing for the third Victory Loan campaign opening Oct. 19, described a "produce for victory" plan under which Canadian farmers will be able, through a pledge, to divert to the loan part of the proceeds from farm products when such products are sold.

"Under the new plan, farmers will be able to take up their share in the loan without jeopardizing their working capital or the reserves necessary to enable them to meet emergencies," the war finance committee said in a statement.

The regular Victory Bond sales organization will obtain signed victory tickets from the farmers, authorizing any buyer to whom he may sell his farm produce to deduct a percentage of the sales price of that produce and forward it to the national war finance committee's provincial headquarters.

The farmer will receive from the national war finance committee the equivalent value in Victory Loan bonds.

The plan is open to every member of the farmer's family. The boy can promise a share in his club calves or pigs; the daughter a portion of her poultry, flock or garden. Mother can sign a victory ticket for a proportion of her poultry, egg or cream cheque, all to be redeemed as these products are ready for market.

ALL DISTILLERS' OUTPUT IN CANADA WILL BE DIVERTED ENTIRELY TO WAR PURPOSES

Ottawa. Production of beverages by Canadian distilleries will be halted Nov. 1 and the entire output diverted to war purposes, the munitions and supply department announced.

The order, issued by Chemicals Controller E. C. Sterne, has no direct effect on sales of beverages already manufactured and does not apply to the manufacture of beer and wine. There was no immediate indication of how long existing stocks of distilleries will supply demand. Distilled liquors are stored for at least two years for maturing.

Mr. Sterne said the entire output of Canadian distilleries was required for the manufacture of synthetic rubber and chemical and explosive needs of the United Nations.

Similar action was taken in the United States. The United States war production board in Washington ordered the entire output of industrial distilleries diverted into industrial alcohol for wartime purposes after Oct. 8.

Mr. Sterne's announcement was almost simultaneous with the release of figures by the Dominion bureau of statistics showing a decrease in the production and sale of whiskies and other potable spirits in 1941 compared with 1940. There was a marked increase in the production and sale of unmatured alcohol used for industrial purposes.

This, coupled with a report last week showing increased beer production, indicated a trend from hard liquors to beer, though the lack of export figures, which are not made public under war restrictions, made it impossible to determine what proportions of the production and sales was purely Canadian.

The announcement said the order "does not affect the laws relating to retail sales of beverages and the methods of selling in the various provinces."

The decision to divert the entire output of Canadian distilleries to war purposes came at a time when a special cabinet committee had under consideration methods of reducing the consumption of alcoholic beverages in Canada.

A deputation of commissioners from the United Church of Canada had waited on the ministry Sept. 12 urging the limiting of materials used for the production of beer and the rationing of all alcoholic beverages.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the delegation the matter would receive careful consideration by a cabinet committee. Later it was stated that Mr. King would broadcast an appeal to Canadians to exercise temperance in their use of alcohol.

A Dominion bureau of statistics reported showed 15 companies engaged in the distillation of liquor in Canada during 1941. Seven of these were in Ontario, six in Quebec and two in British Columbia.

Whiskies and other potable spirits produced by these distilleries in 1941 and put into bond for maturing totalled 7,674,305 proof gallons, compared with 7,907,908 gallons in 1940.

These spirits had an inventory value of $4,219,685 in 1941 and $4,187,673 the previous year.

Spirits bottled or shipped in bulk for 1941 totalled 6,225,365 proof gallons with a value of $19,889,213, compared with 7,226,704 gallons at $17,175,651 in 1940.

An increase in net value of production for the distilleries, from $18,640,545 in 1940 to $22,952,439 in 1941, was accounted for by increased production of unmatured alcohol. The unmatured production for 1941 totalled 7,904,689 gallons with a value of $4,057,462, compared with 5,763,388 gallons at $3,314,386 the previous year.

Canadian distilleries in 1941 reported a capital investment of $36,905,806 and had 2,094 employees who received a total of $3,019,771 in salaries and wages during the year.

ALIENS SERVING IN OUR FORCES OVERSEAS IN THE FUTURE MAY BECOME CANADIAN CITIZENS

Ottawa.—Aliens serving in Canada's forces overseas in future may become Canadian citizens at the discretion of the secretary of state without waiting the required five years, an external affairs spokesman announced at a press conference.

An order-in-council has been passed under the War Measures Act relaxing the naturalization laws for the benefit of aliens who enlisted in Canada's armed forces and have gone overseas. It will not apply to aliens who are serving in Canada.

Under the Naturalization Act, no person can obtain naturalization until they have lived in Canada five years. They have to apply to the courts and a judge passes on their eligibility, after which the secretary of state has discretion as to whether he will permit them to become citizens of this country.

The new order-in-council will provide a short cut. Aliens in the overseas forces will apply to the secretary of state for naturalization papers and the ministry may grant their request if he sees fit—regardless of how long they have lived in this country.

The step is an appreciation to the aliens who have joined Canada's fighting forces. Officials said, however, that the machinery for granting this privilege has yet to be set up, so the aliens must wait a few weeks at least before their applications can be handled.

HITLER'S SPEECH

Tries To Make German People Think That All Is Satisfactory

London.—British sources and others familiar with Germany interpreted Hitler's speech as an apparent effort to assure both his troops and people that every phase of the war is satisfactory.

Britons noted with interest that the loudest cheering greeted Hitler's promise of the hour to come when the German air force would retaliate for the R.A.F. bombings of Germany.

They declared this was an unmistakable tribute to the efficacy of large-scale attacks on German cities.

Significance also was seen in the assertion of Goebbels that "America hates Nazi Germany from the bottom of her heart" and that whatever reserve strength the United States possessed "must soon run out."

Such a statement hardly would have been necessary, these sources declared, unless the forthcoming relief of the United States in shifting the balance of power to the Allies had made a considerable impression on German morale.

Qualified quarters were impressed by the fact Hitler avoided the once-familiar forecasts of the early and complete destruction of the Russian armies and instead was content to tell the people this year's military objectives had been achieved and occupied territories in eastern Europe soon would be in positions to pour food and other materials into their laps.

Faith—Blindness Cure

LONDON (CP)—George Morley in 1918 was blinded by a bomb from a zeppelin raiding England. In September, 1942, he suddenly discovered he could see trees and he had the first glimpse of his wife since she was a young girl. "My faith has been fulfilled," he said adding that was the only treatment given.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Conservative Party Re-Involvement Necessary to National Welfare

Announcement that a Dominion convention of the Conservative party will be called is received with mixed feelings. Yet it is time that a leader should be chosen for this historic party. To ensure stable government in a Democratic country two strong parties are a necessity. Third parties may at times put either of the old time parties in eclipse, but nevertheless they remain and alternate in the government of the country. That has been history of the Canadian parliament since Confederation. Twenty years ago we saw the rise of the Progressive party, which sent a strong representation, particularly from the West, to Ottawa, yet that party died a natural death, and little is heard of it to-day.

The C.C.F. party has shown considerable vigor under the leadership of the late Mr. Woodsworth, and now Mr. Coldwell, but it cannot yet claim to have attained the status of a national party. Social Credit has assumed some importance in this province, but its policies have found very little acceptance in other provinces. Canada's national policies have been shaped by either the Liberal or the Conservative parties, and are likely to continue so, provided these parties, have as vigorous leadership in the coming years as they have had in the past.

All too few of our people know the history of our leading political parties, and their accomplishments. There is indifference among a large section of our population, for in the western provinces there are many from other lands, whose knowledge of national affairs is very limited or non-existent. Many also look on a political party as a source of patronage, from which they may gain something of personal advantage. They do not realize that if we wish to retain responsible government, we must uphold the same principles by which this type of government was obtained.

With the rejuvenation of the Conservative party, and the selection of a virile leader, Canada will undoubtedly benefit. In reply to those who might criticize the holding of an important political convention while the country is at war, the reply might be made that it is very important that the government be kept on its toes by the knowledge that it has an opposition party which is quite as solicitous on the conduct of the war as the present Liberal government.

An impartial review of the history of both parties reveals that they have records of national service which have built this Dominion to nationhood in the space of 75 years—a comparatively brief period in the history of nations. Its most outstanding leaders since Confederation in 1867 have been Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, men under whose leadership our national policies were formulated, and who did a great deal by their policies to transform Canada from a colony of Great Britain into a self-governing Dominion.

It will be to Canada's benefit to have a strong opposition party and therefore the convention of the Federal Conservatives should arouse Dominion-wide interest.

Third Victory Loan in October

Canadians will again be asked to pledge more of their incomes to back up the war effort. $750,000,000 is the objective for the Third Victory Loan campaign which will open next month. The second loan campaign, it will be remembered, was for $600,000,000, later raised to $900,000,000, so ready was the response by the people throughout Canada.

Local officials will be helped by canvassers whose job it will be to interview individuals. No matter what your income may be, either as a wage earner or owner of a business, you are expected to subscribe something towards the loan. This war will necessarily keep digging into our incomes, and it will mean putting off purchases that we would normally make and use the money instead in helping to win the war.

If we value freedom, we will not put a price tag on it, for had we to choose between freedom and servitude, we would give everything we possessed to retain that freedom.

The Same Old Songs

Though old war songs of 1914-18 are so hackneyed they may be classed as chestnuts, or old enough to have whisks, they still crop up in sing-songs or smokers. It seems this war with its mechanized methods does not bring inspiration to song writers as in the days when the infantryman marched to Mons and sang "Tipperary," or "Pack Up Your Troubles," and other well-known ditties. There have been several sickly crooner types of songs with a brief spell of popularity, but they were not of the type to stir people's blood and did not lend themselves to military bands on the march. So, not having any up-to-date martial songs in which to give vent to our feelings, we stick to the old ones that Tommy Atkins so vociferously sang 25 years ago.

Schools Organize to Aid Salvage Campaign

Principal Hoyle to Set Up Depot in School Ground.

Coleman's salvage drive will be greatly accelerated in the future as the result of organizing the high and public school students to aid in the salvage campaign.

Messrs. F. Aboussafy and W. Dutil interviewed Principal Hoyle and asked for his students co-operation in the salvage campaign. He at once promised his enthusiastic support and this week organized his students for the salvage drive. Containers will be set up in the school grounds and students will be instructed to bring to the school depot metals, rags, fats, rubber, etc. The salvage committee will be responsible for trucking the scrap from the school depot.

By organizing the local schools a heavy load has been lifted from the shoulders of the salvage committee in obtaining salvage throughout the town. Miss Yuill has had Cameron school youngsters busy on the salvage campaign for the past several weeks.

Announcement

Arranged to take place in Calgary this month is the wedding of Hilda, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hillary, formerly of Drumheller and Coleman, and Corporal Frederick George Simmonds son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Simmonds, of Saskatoon.

PALACE THEATRE NOTES

Tonight and Friday, Jack Benny and Carol Lombard appear in "To Be Or Not To Be." This comedy feature has been having good patronage at other Pass theatres and is worth seeing. A special feature is the Russian film, "Inside Fighting Russia." This feature gives an insight as to why Russian fighters are holding out so valiantly at Stalingrad.

"That Hamilton Woman," starring Lawrence Olivier and Vivian Leigh, is a feature worth seeing. It depicts the love life of England's greatest seaman, Lord Nelson.

At Cole's theatre this week end a gripping story of Nazi persecution is depicted. It stars Frederic March and is entitled "So Ends Our Night." It is a story of refugees pouring out of countries overrun by the Nazis. It shows their terrible plight as the Nazis catch them and put them through mental and physical torture.

HOME FROM HONEYMOON

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Rushton, newlyweds, returned home from a visit at the coast at the week end. They had visited relatives at Vancouver and Nanaimo.

Mr. Rushton tells The Journal he met a number of former Colemanites, among them being Scot. McIntock, who now has a good job; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown, who have purchased a new home; Frank Barringham, who is still working in the shipyards, and Uno Gudmundson, also Ernie Peet, who was at one time chief electrician at International, and Jimmy Muir, a former Coleman oldtimer.

While at Nanaimo, Mr. Rushton walked over to the military camp to see some of the local boys. The first one he met was John Binda, who was on guard duty. John, however, was unable to let him into the camp without an escort and as a result Jack failed to meet any of the other boys. In coming across from the island to the mainland on the boat he met Mr. and Mrs. A. Syguta, who had been visiting their son Pte. Joe at Nanaimo.

Helping With War Work

Convicts Behind Prison Bars In Britain Are Not Idle

Britain has fitted her convict population into her war effort to insure that every possible man-hour of work counts.

The Home Office couldn't give figures—its statisticians are tied up with more vital work—but it is evident the country has made good use of hands that otherwise would have been idle behind prison bars.

One of the most notable innovations was the summons of convicts to aid in gathering this year's record harvest.

The Home Office explained this was done only because the need for harvest hands was imperative and assured that these convicts worked "under very careful supervision indeed."

Industries behind prison walls swell the tide of war production in increasing degree. Under the direction of government departments, convict labor is turning out such vital necessities as boats, telephone and radio parts, gas masks, hammock, hardware and component parts of many different weapons.

In one prison, a particular gun part is being mass-produced.

In another prison, school course in mechanics is fitting many men for new places in industry both while they are in prison and after they complete their terms.

Women as well as men prisoners are at work in war production. "We are always looking for opportunities to fit prison industry into war production," said a Home Office official. "No manpower is wasted."

In Traditional Fashion

Chinese Defendants Wanted To Take Oath Their Own Way

Thirty-four Chinese defendants caused consternation in magistrate's court at Liverpool when they proposed taking an oath in traditional Chinese fashion by breaking a saucer each and saying, "as this saucer is broken so may my soul be shattered."

Several hundred Chinese witnesses might be called in the case, and only two saucers could be found in the courtroom.

The magistrate observed, "there is a war on and the breaking of saucers seems to be a needless extravagance." The manufacture of china is limited for the duration.

One Chinese then suggested that the oath be taken to the accompaniment of the cutting of throats of cockerles.

With food rationing in effect that idea was worse than saucer smashing.

The Chinese consul finally suggested that most witnesses could be persuaded to raise their hands and speak an oath.

The Chinese defendants, all seamen, were charged with assaulting five policemen and damaging property on a ship in a northern port.

LOYALTY TO CHRIST

Golden text: What things were gain to me, these have I counted loss for Christ. Philippians 3:7.

Lesson: Mark 2:14-17; John 6:66-69; Philippians 3:7-11.

Devotional reading: Ephesians 4:11-16.

Explanations and Comments

Two Words that Changed a Life, Mark 2:14. The second chapter of Mark records a series of events that happened at Capernaum. In the city, sitting at the place of toll, was a Jew better known afterwards as Matthew, a publican, a tax-gatherer for the hated Roman rulers, despised by his own people because of his occupation. One day Jesus passed by and called Matthew to follow him. Probably the toll Matthew was collecting was levied on the caravans which passed through Capernaum on their way to and from Egypt and Damascus. The Pharisees would glance at Matthew no doubt saying to themselves, "publican and a sinner"; but Jesus, knowing Matthew's thoughts and possibilities, said to him, "Follow me," chose him to be one of his close followers.

Perhaps Matthew had seen and talked with Jesus before this, that we do not know, but now had come the time for decision. He had to decide between his old, well-known life of fair prosperity and a new, unknown life of sacrifice. He arose and followed Jesus. He recognized the power of Jesus and at once yielded his life to his direction.

Christ Came to Call Sinners, Mark 2:15-16. The scribes took issue with Jesus over several matters which Mark gives consecutively in this second chapter; they accused him in their hearts of blasphemy when he declared the sons of the paralytic forgiven; they criticized him for eating with publicans and sinners; they found fault with him because his disciples did not fast, and because they plucked ears of grain on the Sabbath; and then they entered into a conspiracy with the Herodians to compass his death when he cured a man on the Sabbath Day.

Our text records their criticizing his eating with publicans and sinners. Matthew had given a great feast for his new Master and fellow disciples (Lk. 5:29), and so many were the guests, both publicans and sinners, that the gathering had to be held in the courtyard of the house, as was often the custom. When they were reclining at table, some scribes came and sat down with them, as any wayfarer might in the East. They entered to look on, but they stayed to criticize. "How is it that he eateth and drinketh with publicans and sinners?" they said to the disciples. "Publicans (tax-gatherers) were social outcasts; they were hated for their usual extortion, and especially because they were held to be unapologetic in collecting taxes for a foreign power."

Jesus heard the question and answered for the disciples: "They that are whole [that is, the self-righteous Pharisees] have no need of a physician [a Saviour], but they that are sick [those you call publicans and sinners, need him]. I come not to call the righteous, but sinners."

Indians Lose Market

Slump In Sale Of Seneca Root On Account Of The War

The seneca crop harvested by Alberta Indians is suffering a slump because of the war. Used in nearly every cough medicine, seneca root has its best field in central Alberta, where three tribes of Indians, the Stonies, Crees and Chipewyas, dig for it each year. Decades ago a strong medicine was brewed from the root by the Indians themselves, but nowadays it is sold for the most part to buyers in town. In pre-war times Germany was a big customer for Canada's crop of seneca and China's order was a fairly large one. Today, some small orders are received from New York where Jewish druggists, escaped from Germany, have set up their businesses, but not nearly enough is being bought to absorb the large quantities of the root now in stock.

BOMBER TO HER CREDIT

A Russian woman fighter plane pilot, Lieut. Valeria Khomyakova, was credited by Tass with shooting down a German Junkers bomber at night over the front lines. "She violently attacked the enemy plane and disabled it with several gun and machine-gun bursts," the news agency said. "Trying to escape her fire, the enemy bomber steeply dived but Lieut. Khomyakova kept chasing it until the Fascist plane crashed into the ground."

Winter In Russia

In Half Of Country It Usually Lasts Six Months

Russia is acquainted with many varieties of winter temperature in her vast extent of territory passing through many latitudes. Yet half of the country has a six months' winter. From the Arctic to 50 degrees North latitude where the ground is almost permanently frozen winter continues for six to nine months, and even in summer the ground does not thaw to any depth. In the Crimea where fighting was going on a year ago a writer of the 1850's told of finding men in sheepskin coats, marching over courses where the snow drifts had obliterated what were roads. He found one Zouave frozen in the drifts, and the British soldiers wearing headsets to protect their faces from the severe cold.

The coldest winter in the world is experienced at Verkhoyansk in latitude 67 degrees 20 minutes North. With no mountain chains to break the winds, they sweep across the Russian plains, to increase the bitterness.

George Kennan, the famous correspondent who travelled through Russia in the 1850's, tells of wandering with the Koraks on the Siberian plains and sleeping under the Arctic stars at night with the thermometer 60 degrees below zero. He calls the winters in Siberia severe.

The rivers begin freezing in December near the coast of the Black Sea, while around the Caspian and the Aral on the Northern coast they begin in November. In Asiatic Russia the waterways begin to freeze by November in the South, and in September in the Taimyr peninsula and the region east of Yana Bay. Nor does that icy grip leave the land till April in the South, and until May or late June in the Northeast.

If winter comes early it will be hailed by the Russians, who have learned how to use it to the discomfort of their enemies.

HISTORY OF THE CARROT

Long before the Christian era, the merits of the carrot as a medicinal plant were recognized, and it is thought that the carrot was one of the first crops to be cultivated when the ancients gave up a nomadic life for agriculture. What is said to be the original plant is still to be found growing wild in most districts of Europe and western parts of Asia.

MRS. MINIVER

Adapted From the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture
By HALSEY RAINES

Not even the constant procession of German bombers could stop Lady Beldon's annual flower show. It was mounted, with the usual peace-time grandeur, at Beldon Hall, with everyone in the village, great and small, playing a part. On a long, low platform the most eminent Glee Club talent of the county provided the supplementary entertainment.

The great event of the afternoon, of course, was the judging for the prize rose, which would earn the reward of Lady Beldon's Challenge Cup. This was the business closest to the elderly donor's heart. Each year he had put up the cup, staked her silver trophy against the field, and automatically captured the prize. Competition was sporadic and excessively mediocre. There were those, too, who said the judges would never have tried to swim the length of the Thames than vote against Lady Beldon's entry, and risk her volcanic wrath. Today, however, the handsome, luxurious flower entered by Stationmaster Ballard and christened "the Mrs. Miniver" had excited involuntary tribute from almost all those who inspected it.

When the slip of paper announcing the judges' will had been brought to Lady Beldon, she covertly looked at it and read: First Prize, Silver Cup, Lady Beldon. Second Prize, Certificate of Merit, James Ballard.

Her eyes flashing triumph, Lady

LOST IN ACTION

The youngest rating aboard H.M.C.S. Arsiniboine, Ordinary Seaman Kenneth Watson, was the only Canadian lost when the Canadian destroyer rammed and sunk a German U-boat after a spirited close range battle. He is pictured on the destroyer. Watson hailed from Revelstoke, B.C.

Bravely Carol parted from her boyish husband, while he tore across the field to join his squadron. Guns from afar were barking ominously, and dusk was being swallowed up by an early darkness, as Mrs. Miniver started with Carol on the last lap toward home.

"I wish I could go faster," she said, "but it's so dark."
With roving, terrifying abruptness, a host of planes seemed to emerge in the sky. A bomb crashed to earth, then another... then a whole devastating succession.
"Perhaps we should stop and put out the lights," said Mrs. Miniver. She drew up at the side of the road, as the whole fury in the heavens seemed to centre about that spot of ground. The din was incessant, the danger terrible and mounting, but neither woman gave any sign of flinching. As a diving plane let loose a hail of machine-gun bullets, which sprayed around the car, Mrs. Miniver screamed. Then she saw fire rising from the village in the background. In another few minutes, as the vortex of the fighting shifted away from them, she turned to take Carol's hand. The girl was limp and inert; a trickle of blood was running across her face.

The organ of the village church was playing softly as the parishioners filed inside. Vin looked years older. A spasm of pain shot across his face as he looked at Lady Beldon, across the aisle, and thought of the days when she had not been there alone. Mrs. Miniver glanced down and placed a hand over her son's.

"Often after some great disaster," said the vicar slowly, "the survivors meet together with hearts bowed down, wondering how they can face the future. I look into your faces and know this is not true of anyone here. War has broken the peace of centuries in this quiet corner of England, where death cannot strike without robbing us all of a friend. We have lost one close to this church, close to our affections—James Ballard, stationmaster and bell-ringer... but the proud winner only an hour before his death the Beldon Cup for his beautiful Miniver rose."

He paused, and seemed striving to control any quiver in his own voice. His eyes were fixed on the Miniver pew as he went on:

"All our hearts go out in sympathy to the two families who share the cruel loss of a young girl much admired at this altar only two weeks ago." Again he paused, and looked upward. "The homes of many of us have been destroyed, the lives of young and old taken, yet we gather here, those who have been spared, to worship God as our ancestors for a thousand years have worshipped him under this roof."

"I shall now read from Psalm Ninety-One."

I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress. My God, in Him will I trust. He shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence. Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day; nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday. His truth shall be thy shield and buckler."

He closed his book. The organist struck a preliminary chord, and the congregation rose as one. For generations the men and women and children of the village had sung the devotional strains of "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," but never with such intense and united significance. As the voices rang out, a great beam of sunlight came through a jagged hole in the roof, and covered the worshippers in a glow of yellow radiance.

SMILE AWHILE

Had The Answers

"Papa," said little Mary, as they prepared to rise from the supper table, "I have a riddle I want to ask you."

"Go right ahead," said her fond daddy.

"Well," said little Mary. "It's about a woman who got married four times. The first time she married a millionaire. The second time she married an actor. The third husband was a preacher. And the fourth husband was an undertaker. Now, why did she marry them in that order?"

"I give up," said her father. "Why did she?"

And little Mary danced around and sang:

"One for the money; two for the show; three to get ready, and four to go."

"What did your father say about you smashing up his car?"

"Shall I leave out the swear words?"

"Certainly."

"Then he didn't say anything."

Salesman: I'm afraid, sir, we can't deliver this order until your old account is paid up.

Customer—Oh, very well; cancel it—I can't think of waiting that long.

"That's a fine girl you've married," said the old friend.

"Yes," said the angler absent-mindedly, "but you should have seen the one that got away."

First Motorist—I love the beauties of the countryside.

Second Motorist—So do I. Here's one coming now; let's give her a lift.

"Why are you crying?"

"Father called mother a waddling goose."

"Well?"

"Mother called father a stupid ass."

"But why are you crying?"

"Well, what am I?"

Little Girl—I know something I won't tell.

Daddy—Never mind, child. You will get over that when you're a little older.

Scene: A service canteen in Glasgow. Lady attendant behind counter to American soldier drinking coffee.

"And how do you like our Scottish lassies, mister?"

American soldier: "Sister, in the States we bury our dead."

Lady Attendant (with astonishment): "My, they didn't harm you much when they dug you up."

WRITING LETTERS CAN BE MADE EASY

"Oh, Why Can't I Write Well?"
"Woe is me!" you think. "I try so hard, I use up so much paper, and I just know I'll be bored to death with my letter!"

But wait a minute. Are you sure he'll be bored? Your news may not be much, but he'll love reading it if it's told right—and you can easily tell it right.

Don't just line up facts in little blunt sentences: "Henry and Midge called for us. He drove his old car. We went to the movies."

Pick the happy spots and dress them in: "Henry drove up in his car with a HORRIBLE clanking noise. Midge was so embarrassed!"

Another trick is to use the exact word, the "picture phrase." Not a "very good" speech, but "deeply moving" or "inspiring."

As you read your letter over, comb out grammar snags—easy to find when you know how! "I laid down to sleep," corrected, becomes "I lay down." "Different" than "becomes" is "different from."

Our 32-page booklet has correct forms for common grammar mistakes; suggests topics for friendly letters; helps you find vivid words and phrases for everyday thoughts. Has 24 correct model letters—including business, friendly, social.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Good Letter-Writing Made Easy" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg News-paper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, R.3. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet. 2484

NO RESERVE LOG STOCKS

British Columbia has practically no log stocks in reserve, Lands Minister Gray said, although usually at this time of year there are between 200,000,000 and 300,000,000 feet of logs in the water awaiting shipment. He said the situation was due to labor shortage.

SEES THROUGH SOLIDS

An inventor in Sydney, N.S.W., who claims to be able to see through solid objects 12 feet thick, has submitted his device to the New South Wales section of the army invention directorate who said the invention was "on the right track."

CANADA'S MINERALS

There are many known deposits of minerals in Canada, some of them of immense value. Amber, bentonite, corundum, diatomite, feldspar, graphite, mica and phosphate rock are among these.

Had Thrilling Sea Trip

Unskilled Crew Sailed Schooner From

Solomon Islands To Australia. A thrilling story of war and sea adventure was told by four members of an unskilled crew of 11 when they reached Auckland, New Zealand. They are the Rev. E. C. Leadley, Dr. A. G. Rutter, Miss E. Harkness and Miss V. Cannon. Fleeing the Japanese, they sailed a 19-ton schooner 1,000 miles from the Solomon Islands to Mackay, Australia. The only one who knew anything of seamanship was a cripple who had been a sailor 30 years before. In the party were five men and six women.

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

A tree can grow without putting its roots in the ground? This one did when a seed fell on a dead tree, sprouted ten feet from the ground, and now stands 75 feet tall in Stanley Park at Vancouver, B.C. This picture is from the movie "Did You Know That?" by Associated Screen Studios.
